

This is a detailed topographic map of a region in the Czech Republic, specifically the area around the towns of Strašovice and Chuchelná. The map uses contour lines to represent elevation, with red lines indicating higher elevations and green lines indicating lower elevations. A network of blue and purple lines is overlaid on the map, likely representing water features or utility infrastructure. The map includes labels for various locations, including Rohov, Strašovice, Chuchelná, and surrounding areas like Za humny, Na Kuněšově, and Pod hájem. A black line with white circles runs along the top right edge of the map, possibly indicating a boundary or a specific type of terrain. The map also shows a road network and various landmarks, including a church in Chuchelná and a large building in Strašovice.

